INDEX

TO THE

SIXTY-EIGHTH VOLUME OF THE QUARTERLY REVIEW.

A.

Adams, Mrs., Letters of, with an introductory Memoir by her Grandson, C. F. Adams, 469—pedigree and youth of Mrs. Adams, 470—character of her letters, 471 — their prominent faults, 472—specimens of her pedantry, 473 —inaccuracies, the battle of Bunker's Hill, 475—state of feeling in America previous to the outbreak, 476—Mrs. Adams's want of charity, 479 — her opinion of George III., 480 — Canterbury as described by her, 481 — Paris, 483—society of the French metropolis, 484—contagious effect of habit, 485—reception of Mr. Adams at the court of St. James's, 486—causes of their not being much received in society, 489—Mrs. Adams's opinion of the ladies of England, 490—her aristocratic vanity, 491—antipathy to the negro population, 492—death, 494.

Akber, 405. See Elphinstone.

America, 281. See Buckingham and Combe.

America, public men of, their general poverty, 493.

Anderson, Christopher, 'Historical Sketches of the Native Irish,' 336—number of persons in Ireland that speak the English and Irish languages, 348.

Archimedes, resemblance of his character to that of Newton, 192.

Australian Agricultural Company, territory and possessions of, 100.

Australian colonies, the, 88—anomalous character of the animal and vegetable structures of Australia, 89—importance of colonies to England, 90—and of emigration for our manufacturing population, 92—convict labour, 93—former distribution of land in Australia, 95 — present division of New South Wales, ib. — first settlement, 98 — Sir George Gipps's prosperity test, 100—population, 101 — causes of present prosperity, 103 — advantages derived by Great Britain from New South Wales, 104—consequences of stopping transportation and checking emigration, 105 — present aim of the emancipists, 106 —squatters, 107—cost of keeping convicts at home and in the colonies, 108—district of the Australian Agricultural Company, 110—Norfolk Island, 111—Captain Maconochie's system, 113—Port Philip, 117—Van Diemen's Land, 120—convicts and emigrants, 121—aborigines, 122 — present population, 123—South Australia, 124—its state in 1837, 125—alleged fertility and prosperity, 126 — expensive manner in which this colony has been conducted, 129—Swan River, 130 — population, 131—Australind and Port Grey, 132—Port Essington, 133 — New Zealand, 135—the question whether the Queen of England is sovereign of these islands examined, 136—the New Zealand Colonization Company, 138—alarm excited by their proceedings, 140—results of the labours of the missionaries in New Zealand, 141—the whale-fisheries, 142—the Falkland Islands, 144.

B.

Ballad poetry, resemblance of, throughout the world, 65.

Baltic, Letters from the, 444—circumstances under which the work was written, 445—the custom-house at St. Petersburg, 446 — Russian wedding, 447 — ménage in the château of an Esthonian baron, 451—a winter's walk, 456—peasantry and divisions of Esthonia, 458 — a result of emancipation from serfage, 459—state of religion and church law, 460—effects of the absence of a law of primogeniture, 462—food of the peasantry, 463—a festival described, 464 — contrast of the institutions of England and Esthonia, 467—an Esthonian spring, 468.

Barrow, John, 'A Tour round Ireland through the Sea-coast Counties,' 336—beneficial effects of 'the Irish Society,' 347.

Belgium, 1. See Tennent.

Beltz, G. F., 'Memorials of the Order of the Garter, from its Foundation to the present Time,' 413—a review of the Chandos peerage case, ib. — origin and date of the Order of the Garter, 415 — decorations, 419 — collar and badge, 420 — extension of the Order since 1786, ib.—persons privileged to be knights, 421 — specimen of Mr. Beltz's diligence, 423.

Bretons, Minstrelsy of, 57—analogy between Welsh and Breton poetry, 61—antiquity of the latter, 62—'The Crusader's Wife,' 66—'The Mother of the Changeling,' 68—'The Breton Tailor,' 69—deep religious feeling, 71—dislike to French connexion, 72—the 'Lenore,' 75—'Tale of Unhappy Love,' 77—'Geneviève of Rusteau,' 77—'Fontenelle the Leaguer,' 79—historic and legendary ballads, 81—drama, 83—specimens, 84.

Brahmin, 382. See Elphinstone.

Briavoinne, M., 'De l'Industrie en Belgique,' 2.

Buckingham, J. S., 'America: Historical, Statistic, and Descriptive,' 281—substance of Mr. Buckingham's lectures to the Americans, 282—reception in the United States, 284—analysis of his Index, 286.

Budget, the, and the Dissolution, 239—conduct of the Reform Ministers, ib.—the Cabinet of 1832, and the condition of that of 1841, 240—light in which their late proceedings must be viewed, 241—Lord J. Russell's denial that the Budget was produced on the spur of the moment examined, 243—statement of the financial difficulties of Ministers since 1835, 246—mischief and futility of the Ministerial plan for meeting them, 247—the principle of low duties not universally applicable, 248—the only grounds upon which they can be laid aside, 249—the two that can never be wholly abandoned, ib.—reasons why the sugar and timber duties should not be tampered with at present, 251—the object of a corn-law, 254—conversion of a question of political economy into an engine of party vengeance, 254—extent to which attempts to madden the minds of the people have been carried, 256—the Ministerial project and professions exposed, 257—will the abolition of the corn-laws benefit any class of the community? 259—will it ensure cheap bread? 261—the cry of 'cheap bread' analysed, 264—effects of the existing laws, 266—the proposed would doom the people to expatriation and starvation, 267—it would not enlarge the market for our own manufactures, 268—England at the mercy of the Continent, 272—Lord J. Russell's opinions upon free-trade a few years since, 273—his Lordship's sentiments in theory and in practice, 275—Letter to the Yeomanry and Farmers of Huntingdonshire in 1822, 276—portrait of his Lordship by Mr. Sydney Smith, 277—the most powerful motive of Ministers in introducing their Budget, 277—interests that should be united against them, 278.

Budhism, 397. See Elphinstone.

Buonaparte, Jerome, competition for, amongst the ladies of Baltimore, 30—his brother Napoleon's efforts to dissolve his marriage, 31.

Buonaparte, Napoleon, incorrectly believed to be the founder of the Louvre and other improvements of Paris, 171—amount added by him to the architecture of that city, 483.

C.

Carleton, Wm., 'Traits and Stories of the Irish Peasantry,' and other Tales, 336—Patrick's purgatory of Lough Dearg, 351—scenes at the 'Stations,' 355—an Irish witness, 362—'Wildgoose Lodge,' 371.

Chatterton, Lady, 'Rambles in the South of Ireland,' 'Home Sketches and Foreign Recollections,' 336—'Visit to the Cralloe Woods,' 341.

Combe, George, 'Notes on the United States of America during a Phrenological Visit,' 281—invitation to America, 283—reception, 284—peculiar character of his work, 301—his phrenology tested, 301—the lecturer at Philadelphia and Baltimore, 302—his delineations of members of Congress, 303—results of his examination of the United States, 305—public opinion in America defined, 306—wants of America, according to Mr. Combe, 307—basis of his hopes, 309—panacea for the cure of national and domestic evils, 310—parting address to the British public, 311—his universal suffrage doctrine, 312.

Corn Laws, the, 254. See Budget.
Costello, Louisa S., 'A Summer among the Bocages and the Vines,' 57—character of the work, 58—Miss Costello's talents, ib.—specimens of her prose and poetic translations, 63.
Croker, T. C., 'Researches in the South of Ireland,' 'The Popular Songs of Ireland,' 336—will of one of Cromwell's followers, 360.

E.

Elphinstone, the Hon. Mountstuart, 'The History of India,' 377—characteristics of India, ib.—ignorance in this country of its state, 378—the author's qualifications for the work, 379—division of the history of India, 380—castes, 381—the Brahminical, 382—divisions of a Brahmin's life, 385—the Greek accounts of India, 387—aims of the Brahmin and other castes, 389—literature and poetry of India, 391 — resemblance of its metaphysical philosophy to that of Greece, 392—epic poetry, 393—drama, 395 — Budhism, 397 — manners and character of the people, 399 — their virtues and defects, 402 — the Mahometan Empire of India, 403 — reign of Akber, 405 — his religion, 406—measures adopted by him for the propagation of his creed, 407—doctrine of the earlier Suras of the Koran, 409—state of religion after Akber's death, 410—Mahometanism and Christianity contrasted, 411.
Esthonia, 445. See Baltic.

F.

Foster, the Right Hon. A. J., Bart., 'Notes on the United States,' 20—character of of his 'Notes,' 21—value of the opinions recent English writers upon America, 22—diplomatic life at Washington 40 years ago, ib.—Jefferson, 24—official rudeness, 26 — members of Congress, 28—Jerome Buonaparte, 30—Moreau at Washington, 31 — a residence at Washington necessary to judge of American society, 35—the author's visit to Virginia, 36—General Washington, 37—further progress of his excursion, 40—mint julep, 41—the residence of Jefferson, 42—number of Presidents of the United States natives of Virginia, 45—practical results of Radical supremacy, 46 — inferior functionaries and society of Philadelphia, 50 — American banking, 51—city and state of New York, 53—the New England States, 54 — approval of the political conduct of Sir Augustus by the Prince Regent, 56—the boundary question, ib.

G.

Garter, Order of, 413. See Beltz and Nicolas.
Girardin, M. de, 519.

H.

Hall, Captain Basil, R.N., 'Patchwork,' 312—the author's qualifications, 313—delta of the Rhone described, 314—Alpine débâcle, 316—descent of the glacier, 320—dogs of St. Bernard, 321—baths of Leuk, 322—Simplon and Napoleon, 323—contrast of the gallows and the guillotine, 324—punishment of death, ib. — the Thistlewood conspiracy and execution, 326—death by the guillotine, 329—ascent of Mount Etna, 334.
Hall, Mr. and Mrs., 'Ireland, its Scenery and Character,' 336.

I.

India, 377. See Elphinstone.
Irish peasantry, the, 337—requisites for comprehending their character, ib.—their peculiarities, 340 — position required to be taken by the Irish landlord, 342 — their recollections of antiquity and attachment to an ancient nobility, 343 — the Irish language a key to the heart of the peasantry, 345—extent to which it is spoken, 348—religion, 350—superstition, 351—priestly thraldom, 357 — manner in which it should be opposed, 358 — pugnacity, 360—disregard of truth, 362—tales and legends, 365—love of learning, 366—fondness for potatoes and mendicancy, 368—their attachment to land, ib.—early marriages, 369—causes of their present degradation, 370.

K.

Knighthood, the Orders of, 413. See Beltz and Nicolas.

L.

Lang, Dr., 'History of New South Wales,' 88.
London, deficiency in architectural objects in the eighteenth century, 483.
Lords, House of, number of peerages created by the Grey and Melbourne ministries, 510.
Lowe, Sir Hudson, Despatch of Earl Bathurst to, in approval of his conduct at St. Helena, 324.

M.

Maconochie, Captain, 'Thoughts on Convict Management,' 88—his system at Norfolk Island, 113—celebration of her Majesty's birthday by the convicts under his superintendence, 114—proposed extension of his system to females, 116.
Mahometanism, 403. See Elphinstone.
Manchester Conference of Dissenting Clergymen, character of their meetings, 504.
M'Culloch, J. R., 'Policy and Probable Consequences of the Proposed Repeal of the Corn Laws,' 238—his illustration of the operation of the two systems, 257.
Mechanics, a small taste for, tends to encourage trifling self-conceit, 43.
Ministries, the old and new, 494—the fall of the late government a proof of the improving health of the public mind, 495—the real nature of their recovery of office in 1839, 496—the progress of their downfall—the 'Better Administration of Justice Bill,' 497—appointment of Lord Campbell as Chancellor of Ireland, 499—remarkable and distinctive character of the late dissolution and elections, 500—results of the arts by which the royal prerogative was converted into an instrument of faction, 503—the Manchester Conference, 504—audacity of the bribery at the last elections, 506—result of the elections in detail, 508—the division on the Address in the House of Lords, 509—answer to Lord John Russell's complaint of the Tories pouring a flood of persons of their own political opinions into the House of Lords, 510—ministerial changes after the 4th of June last, 514—policy that should be pursued by Sir Robert Peel, 517—his probable power to increase the cultivation of the fine arts, 520—the repeal of the Union characterised, 523—the Fermanagh meeting, 525—Sir Robert Peel's reply to the Lord-Lieutenant of the county, 526—the new Premier's essential qualities, 527—contrast of a Whig and Tory opposition, 529—effect of the failure of the corn-law agitation upon the future policy of the government, 530—manner in which the poor-law question must be considered, 531—facility with which the present ministry was formed, 533—Sir Robert Peel's declaration of the terms upon which he holds office, ib.—cause of the real triumph of the Conservative party, 534.
Ministry, the Melbourne, 239. See Budget.
Mint julep, the concoction of, 41.

N.

Navy, the, of Great Britain, its real essential strength, 249.
New South Wales, 98. See Australian Colonies.
New Zealand, 135. See Australian Colonies.
Nicolas, Sir Harris, 'History of the Orders of Knighthood of the British Empire, 413—manner in which the work is got up, 414—Order of the Garter, 415—foundation of the Order of the Thistle, 424—history, 425—Order of St. Patrick, 426—of the Bath, ib.—ceremonies of inauguration, 428—the Red Ribbon, 430—not usually held with the Order of the Garter, 430—numbers belonging to the Bath in 1840, 432—Orders of St. Michael and St. George, and the Guelphs of Hanover, 433—state of the representation of the ancient royal families of the British Empire, 434—impossibility of the failure of a Protestant heir to the throne, 435.
Noel, the Hon. and Rev. Baptist—'A Plea for the Poor,' &c., 494—character of the work, and result of its publication, 505.

P.

Peel, Sir Robert, the speech of, on the Ministerial Budget, 239—policy of, 517. See Ministries.
Plantagenet, present representatives of the royal family of, 434.

Punishment of death, impolicy of its absolute abolition, 324.

R.

Railroads, difference of cost of, in England and Belgium, 17—causes of this difference, 18.
Reform, parliamentary, in France, abjured in consequence of the disgraceful scenes at the late English elections, 507.
Rossi, Countess, late Mademoiselle Sontag, 467.
Russell, Lord John, 243. See Budget and Ministries, 490.

S.

Skirrow, Walker, Esq.—'A Letter to a Noble Lord on the Causes which have produced the present Reaction,' 494.
Souvestre, E., 'Les Derniers Bretons,' 57—character of the work, 58—the author's first theatrical attempt, 59—origin of his collection, 60.
Stephens, John, 'History, &c., of New Zealand,' 88.
Stuart, present representatives of the royal family of, 438.
Swan River, Western Australia, 130. See Australian Colonies.
Swinburne, H., Esq., 'The Courts of Europe at the Close of the Last Century,' 145—impropriety of the title of the work, 146—errors and absurdities of the editor, 147—family and early life of the author, 154—his inaccurate acquaintance with the society of foreign courts, 155—introduction to Prince Kaunitz, 160—the Court Theatre of Versailles in 1786, 162—Mr. Swinburne's notice of the French Revolution, 163—curious prophecies connected with it, ib.—Marie Antoinette, 164—Madame de Genlis, 168—Paris in 1797, 169—Bals abonnés, 172—remarkable men of the day, 173—conclusion of Mr. Swinburne's personal history, 176.

T.

Tennent, J. E., M.P., 'Belgium,' 1—the author's opportunies for writing this work, ib.—his visit to Courtrai, 2—the main feature of the book, 4—Mr. Tennent's method of discussing the repeal of the union between Holland and Belgium, and its reference to Ireland, 5—the Belgic Revolution, 6—contradictions of Mr. Tennent's assertions and opinions, 7—vagueness and inconsistencies of his arguments, 11—Mr. Tennent on the fine arts, 13—evils of the Revolution, 15—connexion between the Revolution and the Belgian Railroad, 16—present condition of Belgium, 19—What it will be in the event of war, 20.
Trollope, T. A., 'A Summer in Brittany,' 57—character of the work, 58.
Tudor, present representatives of the royal family of, 434.

U.

United States, the, 281. See Buckingham and Combe.

V.

Van. Diemen's Land, 121. See Australian Colonies.
Villemarqué, Th., Barzas Breiz, Chants Populaires de la Bretagne, 57.

W.

Warburton, Mr., Henry—his acceptance of the Chiltern Hundreds, 507.
Wellington, the Duke of, letter to Lord Liverpool respecting his resignation of the Order of the Bath when promoted to that of the Garter, 430—letter to a general officer passed over in the creation of the Bath in 1813, 431—his Grace not consulted upon the remodification of this Order in 1815, 432.
Western, Lord, Letter of, to Lord J. Russell on his proposed alteration of the corn-laws, 239—his Lordship demonstrates that the proposed measure will not accomplish its ostensible object, 255.
Wilson, Horace, 'Sanscrit Dictionary,' 379—continuation of Mr. Mill's 'History of India,' 380.
Whale-fisheries, the, state of, in 1821 and 1840, 142—produce of the American fisheries, 143—causes of the decay of the British trade, ib.—necessity of measures for its revival and protection, 144.
Whewell, Rev. W., 'History of the Inductive Sciences' and 'Philosophy of the Inductive Sciences founded upon their History,' 177—man a speculative as well as a sentient being, ib.—character of the vestiges of the ancient monuments of human thought and action, 178—practical objects of the philosophy of science, 180—the two schools, 181—connection between their history and philosophy, 182—general spirit of the work, 185—inductive epochs, 186—the Newtonian doctrine of universal gravitation, 187—first dawn of inquiry into the causes and principles of natural events, 189—the Greek school philosophy, 190—their formal astronomy, 193—Copernicus, Galileo, 195—Kepler, 196—effects of the Newtonian discoveries, 198—Mr. Whewell's classification, 199—mineralogy, 200—geology, 201—division of the Philosophy of the Inductive Sciences, 202—general aim of the first book, 203—geometrical truths, 206—experience, 207—time and number, 210—causation, 212—Mr. Whewell's further researches, 216—dependence of science on a few propositions of axiomatic self-evidence, 217—tests of abstract truths, 219—their essence, 220—the primary and secondary qualities of bodies, 223—polarity, 224—the atomic doctrine of chemistry, 225—definition of a mineralogical individual, 226—life, 227—the philosophy of Palætiology, 229—the construction of science, 230—review of opinions on the nature of knowledge and the methods of seeking it, 235—chief characteristics of Mr. Whewell's works, 238.

END OF THE SIXTY-EIGHTH VOLUME.

London: Printed by William Clowes and Sons, Stamford Street.